We have analysed your feedback in detail and have, below, outlined our response and actions being taken.

You Said	We Did
13% of respondents stated that they disagreed or strongly disagreed that other children do not bully their child.	Anti-bullying week will be used as an opportunity to pass on important messages and themes in PSHE lessons. Posters will be displayed in form classes reminding pupils where to go and who to speak to. We will further develop our Catholic virtues in all lessons. SJHS behaviour lead will coordinate a listening to learners.
19% of respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed that their child has good learning experiences, including trips and educational visits.	Of the 33 who disagreed and five who strongly disagreed that their child has good learning experiences, including trips and educational visits, nearly all cited pandemic and Covid restrictions as the probable reason behind a lack of trips. As long as the Covid rules allow, we are hoping for trips to Liverpool, Patagonia, Austria and Manchester to take place in the near future.
16% of respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed that the school helps their child to understand how eating and drinking can affect their health	Of the 30 who disagreed and two who strongly disagreed, six stated they had not heard anything about this; three cited the canteen and queues in the canteen as reasons for their answer. The SJHS curriculum lead will evaluate the opportunities for pupils to learn about healthy eating and drinking in the curriculum and share best practice found. The SJHS curriculum lead we will work in

	particular with PE, RE, Science and Technology to look at opportunities to focus on this in the new Y7 curriculum and in other year groups. Year group split lunches have supported the school in addressing the issue regarding long queues in the canteen.
13% of respondents disagreed or strongly disagreed that their child receives appropriate extra support when needed.	As part of our work on universal provision, in the next listening to learners' activity, the school will ensure that questions around what additional support can be offered to pupils and in which subjects support is particularly helpful or in which subjects support is lacking will be asked and findings actioned upon.

We remain committed to delivering the very best education for your child and your feedback helps us to do this. If you ever feel that you or your child have any concerns that have not been addressed, then please contact your child's form tutor or Head of Year to discuss this further.

Yours sincerely
